A LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Hello, fantastic parents! My name is Rachel Poulin and this is my tenth summer here at Camp Sabra. I am having the absolute best time working as camp's Media Director while getting to know the new & returning campers. I've been busy documenting all the incredible things happening here, and I look forward to sharing it on the weekly Parent Sabra Schmooze. I hope you enjoy!

HEY CAMP SABRA, IT'S OPENING DAY!

There is nothing quite like Opening Day here on the peninsula. It is the divine combination of singing, cheering, and reuniting. This year, Opening Day was particularly enhanced by the brand new Beren Sports Pavilion. Campers were immediately shaded from the hot sun as they got off the bus and quickly got aquatinted with their cabin mates and staff. Music was playing and the crowd was raging. Campers then headed to their cabins to unpack. The day was concluded with dinner, cabin bonding, and a campfire at Inspiration Point.

Camp Sabra Hugs

MISSED
YOU!
WELCOME
BACK!

*According to Camp Sabra's customs, there is no such thing as too many hugs.
Here are just a few of many hugs that occurred on the first day back.*

Jewish Value of the Week:

COURAGE

From our Judaics Director, Rachel Dingman:

This week's Jewish Value is Courage. As we explore courage in everything we do at camp, we took some time in Judaics to learn about two of our most courageous leaders. Moshe and Joshua- two of our tradition's great leaders, both needed reminders of their own amazing qualities to have the courage to accomplish their tasks. Moshe said no to G-d 4 times before he was convinced that he could do the job, and Joshua was repeatedly told to "Be strong and resolute" ("chazak v'amatz"). In Judaics we looked into these moments and tried to figure out how to be strong and resolute and encourage each other to try new things, be brave, and have an amazing summer!

#JerseyTHURsday

This past Thursday, a ton of campers and staff participated in a new and ever-growing camp tradition. Every Thursday, camp plans to unite by wearing Jerseys. Check out these campers and staff who joined the fun this week!

Camper Shout Outs

Davis from B-12 searched all over camp to return the pen that he borrowed from the Ayelet unit head.

Jeri from G-15 is has officially been recognized as camp's "best scraper" at meals. She rocks at cleaning and we love her for it!

Micah and Jimmy from B-14 helped their fellow bunkmates with homesickness and even tucked them in bed at night.

That's all for now!
Thanks for stopping by...
